

Andrea Burgio has been a professor at the Engineering and Management School of the Paris Chamber of Commerce (ESIEE Paris) in France for more than ten years. There he is responsible for the e-Health professionals' master programme - one of the three master programmes of the country, and a rising sector. He is in charge of the Computer Science and Big Data courses. Apart from e-Health, Mr. Burgio teaches Teaching Controversy and Conflict Resolution, Public Speaking, Project Management and Data Science for Engineers and Technologist. As part of his academic work, he conducts courses on "Big Data & Marketing Strategy" and "Economical and Social impacts of Scientific Innovation" in one of the French Business Schools (INSEEC Lyon).

From March 2017 onwards, he is a team-coach at InnoVinci, a scientific student association of Leonardo da Vinci's College located in Paris-La Défense, France. Dealing with "Commerce of the Future", the event is reuniting 650 students from three Parisian schools: engineering, business and design (more information: <http://www.devinci.fr/en/>)

Andrea is an entrepreneur and the CEO and founder of Forma-Mentis GBC sa since 2002. His consulting firm associates several industry experts and executives worldwide. Forma-Mentis GBC serves premium organisations and firms in various sectors such as finance, telecommunication, pharmaceuticals, infrastructure, winery, software as well as social services and public administration.

Across Europe, Andrea Burgio studied and specialised in various fields. He graduated with an MBA from Lyon Business School, France. In addition he holds a master's degree in International Finance (Groupe IFG, continuous education for leaders and managers, France) and a master's degree in Artificial Intelligence and Telecommunications (Télécom Bretagne, France). His specialties are computer sciences, mathematics, economics and statistics, which he studied at the universities of Palermo and Rome in Italy as well as the University of Wales.

Find his profile here: <https://www.linkedin.com/in/andreaburgio/>